

Sigrid Laube

Wake Up, Spring is coming!
Aufgewacht, der Frühling kommt!

Illustrated by Silke Leffler

2004, 32 pages, 23,5 x 25,8 cm

Hardcover, full colour illustrations throughout

Picture book for age 4 and up

All rights available

The plants and flowers in the garden are scandalized! Today it's the 21st of March and spring should come, but young boy Till unhappily forgot to tear off the calendar page. The calendar still keeps the 20th of March. All the plants and trees and the animals have been looking very forward to welcome springtime! The winter has been very long and hard and everyone is waiting for warming sunrays to wake up. The Earth Woman excitedly twitches the daffodil's bulb and wakes up the other flowers. But the wind becomes a bit glum and murmurs: "Today is not yesterday. Spring would like to come, but now it has to wait." A wonderful story about the unintentional delay of the beginning of long awaited springtime – marvellously illustrated by Silke Leffler.

New Children's Books,
Stuttgart, 2004